

†1447 February 4.

The illustrious and excellent Lord Giano Campofregoso, by the grace of God doge of the Genoese, chose as keeper of the Olivella gate and tower, his beloved Domenico Colombo, serving at the pleasure of the said illustrious lord doge, with the customary pay and revenues, entirely excluding all exceptions.

This act is cited in document 12, but has not been found.

In the name of the Lord, Amen. The brothers Antonino and Domenichino Colombo, sons of the deceased Giovanni, inhabitants of the village of Quinto in the jurisdiction of the podestà of Bisagno, and each of them for a half of the sum of money written below, and other goods as indicated below, voluntarily and from their certain knowledge and not induced by any misunderstanding of law or fact, or in any way deceived, have declared, and in truth publicly recognized to Pasquale Frittalo, inhabitant of the said village of Quinto, present and stipulating, that they ought to give and to pay to the same Pasquale sixty lire di genovini, in one share, to settle the debt of one hundred and twenty-five lire di genovini for the dowry of Battistina, sister of the same, and wife of Giovanni Frittalo, son of the said Pasquale. This notwithstanding that in the dotal contract of the said Battistina, written a little earlier today by my hand, the notary written below, the said Pasquale declared that he had and had received the said one hundred and twenty-five lire di genovini for the dowry of the said Battistina. Likewise, for the other part, they promise six silver spoons of true weight, according to the custom of the village of Quinto, when the marriage contract shall be enacted. Renouncing, etc.

That these sixty lire di genovini and six silver spoons, the said brothers and each of them for a half, have promised to give, pay, and deliver to Pasquale himself, present and stipulating, as above, or to his legitimate representative, within the limits written below, to wit: five lire di genovini from each of them by the next St. Michael's Day, and the remaining fifty lire di genovini within five years, beginning next Christmas, and each year following, that is, five lire di genovini from each of the brothers every one of the five years until the sixty lire di genovini is entirely paid; and the said six spoons, that is, three from each of them, these within the next three years.

Under penalty of double, etc.; Ratified, etc.; And accordingly, etc.; Enacted, etc.; As may befit, etc.; And wherever, etc.; Renouncing, etc.; And whatever grace, franchise, or safe conduct, etc.

Done at Genoa, in the stalls under the house of Angelo di Negro, and of his brother, that is at my bench of residence, the notary inscribed below, in the year of the Nativity of our Lord, 1448, tenth indiction according to the Genoese reckoning,

20th day of April, Saturday at Vespers, in the presence of Bartolomeo from Terra-rossa, of Bartolomeo Riccio, notary, and of Giorgio Clavarino, son of Giovanni, called and invited as witnesses.
